InventHelp's INPEX® Announces Dates and Keynote Speaker for 25th Anniversary Show

Pittsburgh...InventHelp's Invention and New Product Exposition (INPEX) is pleased to announce the show dates for the 25th anniversary INPEX Show, June 16-18, 2010. INPEX, America's largest Invention Trade Show will welcome Nolan Bushnell, founder of Atari and Chuck E. Cheese, as the keynote speaker. INPEX features inventors from all across the country and internationally as well. The 25th anniversary show will be held at the newly constructed Monroeville Convention Center, just twenty minutes from downtown Pittsburgh.

InventHelp's INPEX® is a unique trade show that showcases numerous inventions, new products and innovations that are available to license, market or manufacture. The Invention Show brings inventors and entrepreneurs together with industry representatives in one convenient forum. INPEX® will again feature the INPEX® Inventor's University™ to date. "We are very excited to have set the dates for our 25th anniversary show and to be in a brand new building. Over the last few months, we have been contacted by many inventors who are interested in taking part in the show, as well as many business attendees."

If you are an inventor who is interested in exhibiting at INPEX®, prime space is available. Please visit our website at www.inpex.com or call 888-54-INPEX and speak to one of our INPEX® sales representatives. Don't miss this opportunity to exhibit at America's largest invention trade show.
