California Inventor to Exhibit “Re-StringIT” at America’s Largest Invention Show

PITTSBURGH... InventHelp’s INPEX®, America’s Largest Invention Trade Show, announces that Chad Archibeck, from Hermosa Beach, Calif., has invented a drawstring re-threader that could re-string multiple garments. This patent-pending invention will be exhibited at INPEX® 2012, June 13-15, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

It can be so frustrating when a favorite hoodie or a pair of drawstring pants loses the string in the wash. Re-StringIT solves this problem by easily and quickly threading all types of garments. It eliminates having to attach the string to a safety pin, and then attempt to guide the safety pin through the narrow drawstring hole. Durable and easy to use, the invention features an adjustable loop, allowing it to re-string any size string. It also eliminates having to throw away good clothes because of the loss of a drawstring.

The invention would be made of aluminum and would include a thin wire to form loop-rounded edges. These smooth edges would allow delicate fabrics, such as a pair of silk pajama bottoms, to be able to be re-threaded without damaging the fabric. According to the inventor, the Re-StringIT could re-string anything from a hooded sweatshirt to an apron to a pair of medical scrubs to a Speedo®.

The Re-StringIT is available for sale on www.re-stringit.com. Suggested Retail Price: $19.99, plus shipping and handling.

The inventor designed the idea because of his own personal experience. “My favorite shorts lost their string while being washed, and I didn’t have time to do the safety pin trick,” he said. “I thought that there had to be a better and easier way, and I researched the market only to find that there was nothing out there like Re-StringIT.”

Archibeck is exhibiting at INPEX® with the hopes of finding a distributor and licensee.

INPEX®, The Invention Show, is a unique trade show that showcases new products and innovations that are available to business and industry to manufacture, license or distribute. As part of the trade show, The Invention Show sponsors INPEX® Inventors University™, a series of seminars, presentations, and panel discussions to provide information that inventors may find useful in pursuing their ideas. This year, INPEX® is proud to announce Kevin Harrington, of ABC’s hit show, Shark Tank, as the 2012 keynote speaker.
