Virginia Inventor to Exhibit “Safety Video Spray” at America’s Largest Invention Show

PITTSBURGH... InventHelp’s INPEX®, America’s Largest Invention Trade Show, announces that Tselane Robertson, from Herndon, Virginia, has invented a personal protection device that combines a canister of pepper spray and a battery operated video camera. This invention will be exhibited at INPEX® 2012, June 13-15, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The news is heavily insulated with stories of individuals getting attacked, robbed, mugged, and viciously physically assaulted. Protecting oneself from these dangerous attacks is not only wise, but it appears it is a necessity. One inventor took this into consideration and thought of an idea called “Safety Video Spray”, which is a solution to help deter an attacker from further crimes.

Safety Video Spray allows individuals to protect themselves while simultaneously capturing a live video recording of their attacker. This video footage can be used later for identification purposes. A user will now have an extra means of protection because an attacker will be immobilized by the pepper spray and captured by the video recorder.

The inventor was inspired to think of her invention because of her sister’s unfortunate attack. “My sister was attacked and robbed,” said Robertson. “After her attack, I thought about the many people who have been in the same situation where the attacker was never identified or prosecuted.”

Robertson is exhibiting at INPEX® with the hopes of finding a manufacturer, distributor venture capitalist, licensee or importer/exporter.

INPEX®, The Invention Show, is a unique trade show that showcases new products and innovations that are available to business and industry to manufacture, license or distribute. As part of the trade show, The Invention Show sponsors INPEX® Inventors University™, a series of seminars, presentations, and panel discussions to provide information that inventors may find useful in pursuing their ideas. This year, INPEX® is proud to announce Kevin Harrington, of ABC’s Hit Show, Shark Tank, as the 2012 keynote speaker.
